PREFACE

1. This report contains statistics on marriages contracted and divorces granted in South Africa during 1999, as registered by the civil registration system.
2. The 1999 report portrays statistics on marriages recorded and recognised by the civil registration system, and therefore those marriages and divorces not recognised by civil registration system have not been included. While the Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961) made provision for the solemnisation of marriages according to 'Christian, Jewish or Mohammedan rites or rites of any Indian religion', in fact only marriages concluded according to Christian and Jewish or Hebrew rites had been recognised. In the case of other religions whose marriage ceremony had not yet been approved at the time, marriages concluded through the rites of these religions, were not recognised. The summary and explanatory notes of this report discuss in detail the steps that are being taken to align the older (based on the Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961), legislation with the new Constitution of South Africa.
3. In the case of marriages, the statistical information is obtained from the Department of Home Affairs, whilst data on divorces are obtained from the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court.
4. As from 1991 the Department of Home Affairs does not collect information on population of couples getting married. For divorces, however, information on population group is available.
5. As from 1994 information on divorces for all population groups is collected. Previously only information on divorces for coloured, Indian/Asian and white was collected.
6. Divorces where the population group of the husband and wife differs, or are unspecified, form part of the contents of the report and are no longer shown as a table in the summary.
7. Should your copy of this publication have any unacceptable printing or binding errors, the publication will be exchanged free of charge on receipt of the unsatisfactory copy. Please return it to the STATS SA's head office, at Private Bag X44, Pretoria, 0001 or 170 Andries Street, Pretoria.

SUMMARY

Introduction

The marriage and divorce statistics covered in this report include marriages and divorces that were recorded through civil registration system in 1999. This excludes the marriages solemnised under customary and certain religious rites during this time. Past legislation on the registration of marriages and divorces in South Africa resulted in customary and certain religious marriages and divorces being excluded from the civil registration system. Marriages solemnised under religious or customary rites that did not follow the prescribed marriage ceremony in the previous Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961), or where the marriage formula had not been approved by the Minister of Home Affairs, were not recognised or recorded by the civil registration system. Also marriages solemnised by a minister of religion who was not designated as a marriage officer by the Minister of Home Affairs or by any authorised officer in the public service, were not recognised or recorded.

With the recent passing by parliament of the Recognition of Customary Marriages Act, 1998 (Act No. 120 of 1998) the civil registration system will now recognise and record those marriages solemnised under customary rites. The implementation date for this Act is 15 November 2000. It is hoped that the 2001 report will reflect such marriages and divorces.

In order to align older legislation with the new constitution, the South African Law Commission has undertaken an investigation with a view to recognising Islamic marriages. In this regard a more detailed discussion is featured in the explanatory notes of this report.

Officially recorded marriages

In 1999 the total number of officially recorded marriages for South Africa was 140 450. In Table A the number of officially recorded marriages dating back to 1981, is shown. The crude marriage rate for 1999 for the registered marriages was 335 per 100 000 of the population. In Figure 1 the crude marriage rates by province shows that Western Cape had the highest crude marriage rate (540 per 100 000 of the population). Gauteng had the second highest rate (475 per 100 000 of the population), followed by Free State (471 per 100 000 of the population). KwaZulu-Natal had the lowest rate (150 per 100 000 of the population). The low rate in KwaZulu-Natal could be explained by the fact that unregistered customary and traditional marriages mostly occur in this largely rural province. In general the more 'rural' a province, the fewer the number of recorded marriages per 100 000 of the population. This is probably because of the large number of unregistered customary marriages taking place in the province.

Officially recorded marriages by way of solemnisation

Of the total officially recorded marriages in 1999, 64 707 (46%) were solemnised under civil rites and 44 479 (32%) through religious ceremonies. For 31 272 (20%) marriages the way of solemnisation was unspecified. When compared to the 1998 data, solemnisation by civil rites decreased in number by 746 and marriages solemnised under religious ceremonies decreased in number by 7 815. The number of marriages classified as unspecified increased by 2 296.

A breakdown of the way of solemnisation by province shows that in some provinces more marriages were solemnised under civil rites than under religious ceremony. The distribution of marriages in the different provinces by way of solemnisation (Figure 2) shows that in Eastern Cape, Free State, North West, Gauteng, Limpopo and Western Cape more marriages were solemnised by civil rites than by religious ceremony. In Northern Cape and KwaZulu-Natal more marriages were solemnised under religious ceremony than by civil rites. In Mpumalanga, for a large number of marriages (4 225) the way of solemnisation was unspecified. Figure 2 indicates that in the more urban provinces a higher number of marriages may be either contracted through civil or religious rites.

The distribution of officially recorded marriages by leading magisterial districts, as shown in Table B, indicates that some districts have a far higher rate of marriages registered than others do. The high concentration of marriages in these districts can be attributed to the fact that most of them are more populated and more urbanised in their respective provinces. However their population group composition and principal economic activities are varied.

In Gauteng 6 out of a total of 23 districts in the province recorded 67% of the marriages. Out of a total of 42 districts in Western Cape, 6 recorded 63% of the marriages. In KwaZulu-Natal 35% of the marriages were recorded in 4 out of 51 districts. In Limpopo 4 out of a total of 31 districts recorded 53% of the marriages. In Eastern Cape 68% of the marriages were recorded in 4 out of a total of 78 districts. In 4 out of a total of 52 districts, 66% of marriages were recorded for Free State. In North West 52% of marriages were recorded in 4 out of a total of 27 districts. The Northern Cape had 46% of marriages recorded in only 2 of its 25 districts. Mpumalanga had 35% of marriages recorded in 4 of its 31 districts.

Age patterns of officially recorded marriages

The age at first marriage is important, as it influences the timing of childbearing, the number of years exposed to childbearing (in communities where childbearing starts with the formation of marital union) and ultimately fertility. In 1999 the median age for first registered marriage for females was 28,7 years and for males 32,3 years (this includes officially recorded marriages for mixed and unspecified population groups). In Figure 3 the age distribution for males and females at the time of first marriage is unimodal and skewed towards the younger ages, peaking at age group 25-29. For ages below the peak age group more females than males got married, while for ages above the peak age group more males than females got married.

Figure 4 shows the relative ages of bachelors and their brides at the time of marriage. A little under 79% of the bachelors who married spinsters were older than their brides. About 13% were younger than their brides and a little under 7% were the same age as their brides. This suggests that in most of the first registered marriages, females got married to males who were older than themselves. On the other hand, over 75% of bachelors, who married either widows or divorcees, were younger than their brides. About 19% of bachelors were older than their brides who were widows, and 6% older than their brides who were divorcees. Figure 5 shows that widowers were older than the spinsters, widows or divorcees that they married. Figure 6 shows that the proportion of divorcees older than their brides at the time of marriage was largest for those who married spinsters at 88%.

Previous marital status at time of marriage

The breakdown of previous marital status at time of marriage shows that more bachelors married either spinsters or divorcees. Widowers showed a preference for solemnisation of marriages by civil rather than by religious ceremonies. This is seen in the figure of 1 827 for marriages solemnised by civil ceremony as against 439 by religious rites. On the other hand, divorcees showed a preference for solemnisation of marriages by civil rather than by religious ceremony, 5 291 compared to 5 011. When bachelors married divorcees, more did so by means of religious ceremonies than by civil ceremonies, 2 590 compared to 2 788.

Officially recorded divorces

Divorce is the conclusive act of dissolution of a marriage, and in 1999 a total of 37 098 were recorded in South Africa. The modified divorce rate for South Africa was 660 per 100 000 married couples. Figure 7 shows the provinces by modified divorce rates. The provinces with the highest modified divorce rates were Gauteng (1 277 per 100 000 married couples), followed by Western Cape (1 158 per 100 000 married couples), and Northern Cape (806 per 100 000 married couples). Limpopo had the lowest crude divorce rate at 148 divorces per 100 000 married couples.

In 1999, 6 823 divorces were recorded for Africans, 3 938 for coloureds, 1 976 for Indians/Asians and 14 785 for whites. The modified divorce rate for whites was 1 441 per 100 000 married couples, followed by Indians/Asians (865 per 100 000 married couples) and coloureds (770 per 100 000 married couples). The modified divorce rate for Africans was 180 per 100 000 married couples. The low modified divorce rate for Africans could be attributed to the absence of reporting of traditional and customary divorces, since in most instances the traditional and customary marriage is not registered.

Officially recorded divorces by way of solemnisation of marriages

Of the total number of recorded divorces for whites, most marriages were solemnised as religious rather than as civil marriages. A similar pattern emerges for coloureds, with more marriages solemnised through a religious ceremony than through civil registration. Figure 8 shows that for Africans more marriages were solemnised under civil registration than as religious marriages. This is also the same for Indians/Asians. These patterns of civil registration of marriages for Africans and Indians/Asians can be attributed to the non-recognition of their respective customary, traditional and religious rites of marriage at that time. This means that for a marriage to be recognised the couple would have had to have their marriage registered through the civil registration system even if they had contracted a religious marriage prior to this.

Age patterns of registered divorces among the different population groups

Age patterns of registered divorced males by population group are shown in Figure 9. From the Figure it is observed that for whites, divorces begin early, with husbands aged under 20 years. The divorces rise sharply after age 24 and only begin to decline after age 40. The pattern for all the other population groups show relatively later rises in divorces, with Africans showing the slowest rise before the age of 30. A comparison of the patterns between whites and Africans show that divorces begin early among whites and remain relatively high until after age 40. Compared to white males, divorces for African males begin later and start to decline later than those for whites.

Divorces among Indian/Asian males remain relatively constant through the different age groups. Divorces among coloured couples begin early with the husbands' age under 20 years and thereafter steadily rise peaking at 30 -34 years. The age patterns of divorce for all the population groups for males show that peaks are highest for whites and least for Indians/Asians.

Figure 10 shows the age patterns for registered divorce for females by population group. From the Figure it can be observed that for whites, divorces begin early, with wives aged under 20 years. They rise sharply and it reaches its peak at the age group 25-29 years and declines thereafter. The pattern for all the other population groups show a relatively steady rise in age at the time of the divorce. For African females the divorce pattern shows a steady rise for the age group 20-24 years, peaking at 30-34 years. For the age range 30 and 39 years divorces for African females remain constant, and thereafter gradually decline. Divorces among Indian/Asian females remain relatively constant through the different age groups. Divorces among coloured couples are common for wives under the age of 20 years and thereafter steadily rise peaking at 30-34. In a similar vein the age patterns of divorce for females among the different population groups show that peaks are highest for whites or lowest for Indians/Asians.

Divorces by duration of marriage prior to the divorce

Figure 11 shows the number of divorces according to the duration of marriage prior (less than 25 years) to the divorce by population group. The Figure shows that the number of divorces decline with increasing duration of marriage among all population groups. For all population groups combined, about 34% of the divorces occurred for marriages of less than 5 years duration, and 29% for marriages of between 5 and 10 years. This pattern for Africans and coloureds with the peak number of divorces occurring for marriages of 5-9 years duration and declining with increasing duration of marriage. Among the whites more divorces occurred in the duration category of 0-4 years. For Indians/Asians, the number of divorces was almost independent of duration in those marriages lasting less than 15 years. The number of divorces by duration only started declining for marriages of more than 15 years.

Figure 12 shows the number of divorcees amongst those married more than once at the time of divorce by population group. Among African males and females the number of divorcees that had married more than once was lower than that for the other population groups. Of all the population groups Indian/Asian females had the highest number of divorcees that had married more than once. Among this group the males also had a higher number of divorcees that married more than once. This number is lower than that for the females. For coloureds, females had a slightly higher number of divorcees that married more than once than the males. For whites the males had a slightly higher number of divorcees that married more than once than the females.

Minor children involved in divorce

Divorce may have a profound effect, not only on the living arrangements of the minor children, but also on their socio-economic well being. A total of 45 123 minor children were affected by registered divorces in 1999, representing an increase in number compared to the 1998 total of 39 096. The 1999 data on divorces show an average of 100 minor children per divorce granted. Figure 13 shows the breakdown of the number of minor children affected by divorce by population group. For Africans a total of 9 134 minor children were affected by divorce, for whites it was 15 579, for Indians/Asians 2 805 and for coloureds 5 946. In 1999 the numbers of minor children affected by divorce for mixed and unspecified population groups, respectively were 353 and 11 513.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

1. GENERAL BACKGROUND

1.1 Comparability of data

- 1.1.1 Data on marriages and divorces dating back to 1985 are not comparable to data from the previous years. Closing dates for these series were advanced to as near as possible to the end of the relevant year.
- 1.1.2 Divorces that are registered late are recorded for the year of registration of the divorce and not for the year in which the divorce was granted.
- 1.1.3 For the period 1970 to 1993, data for the former Republics of Transkei, Bophuthatswana, Venda and Ciskei were excluded from the report (Table 1.1 of the report). As from 1994 data for these areas form part of the data reported.
- 1.1.4 In comparison to previous years, figures for divorces for 1991 are relatively low. This decrease in the number of divorces has been queried with the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court, but no explanations could be found.
- 1.1.5 For the years 1990 to 1991 the number of divorces indicated a relative decrease. In comparing the 1992 number of finalised divorces received from the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court, with the court rolls of finalised divorces, it appears that Stats SA did not receive all the information from the courts concerned. To provide a more accurate divorce figure, the 1992 divorce information was adjusted.
- 1.1.6 The number of divorces for 1993, when compared to 1992, is relatively low. Following queries with the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court, it was confirmed that all relevant information on divorces had been supplied to Stats SA.

- 1.1.7 Incompleteness in data can occur if all information on marriages and divorces is not supplied. Under-reporting and under-registration of marriages and divorces is inevitable, and the effects of this on marriages and divorces statistics has not yet been determined or estimated.

1.2 Collection and compilation of data on marriages

- 1.2.1 Marriage officers obtain data on marriages from marriage certificates that are submitted to the Department of Home Affairs. Very often magistrates, justices of peace, commissioners and ministers of religion serve as marriage officers, although other public service employees may also be designated to serve in such capacities. Marriages solemnised in courts are classed under civil marriages and are recorded by the Department of Home Affairs within three days of solemnisation of any marriage. However, as from 1 June 1996 no magistrate or designated persons from the Department of Justice solemnised marriages. The solemnisation of marriages is now conducted by the Department of Home Affairs.
- 1.2.2 Data capture of the marriage details is subsequently carried out at the Department of Home Affairs. Details of the bride and bridegroom are recorded together with the religious denomination of the officiating minister. At the coding of data stage, codes are assigned only to the religious denominations with significant numbers of divorces.

1.3 Collection and compilation of data on divorces

- 1.3.1 Stats SA, through registrars of the twelve Supreme Courts, administers the divorce form. Data capture and editing are carried out at Stats SA. The new divorce form (implemented in May 1999) now provides for the inclusion of customary and religious marriages in the section on the way in which present marriage was solemnised.
- 1.3.2 Undocumented cases of abandonment do not appear in the statistics nor do divorces that have been granted by religious or traditional authorities outside the civil courts.
- 1.4 Shortcomings in marriage and divorce statistics
- 1.4.1 An issue that needs clarification is the treatment of marriage or divorce as an event as opposed to a process. When the marriages become processes extending over a period of time, they cannot be described as events that took place at certain dates.
- 1.4.2 For divorces, this problem is even worse. When couples first report the need for divorce, it may be granted in a few weeks if it is not contested. However, granting of the divorce may take a few years if contested. The statistics presented here report the year in which the divorce is granted, thereby reducing the whole process to an event.
- 1.4.3 With regard to divorces, this report does not take into account annulments. An annulment is another way in which the marriage contract is dissolved. It makes the marriage contract void from inception and confers on the parties the status of never having been married or to the status they held before the annulled marriage. A divorce confers the status of divorce on the parties. An annulment is distinctive from a divorce in that the former is granted based on some condition existing at the time of the contract, whereas the latter is granted based on some condition arising during the contract.
- 1.5 Towards the improvement of marriages and divorce statistics
- 1.5.1 From 1970 to 1993, Stats SA did not publish in their reports any information on marriages and divorces for Africans, due to the small number recorded by the civil registration system. This information was first published in the 1994 report.
- 1.5.2 Marriage statistics among Africans was only included in the reports from 1991 as part of the totals (there was no breakdown by population groups). The 1995 report was the first one to shed some light on the pace of change in divorces among Africans.
- 1.5.3 Past legislation on the registration of marriages and divorces in South Africa resulted in a large proportion of especially customary and certain religious marriages and divorces being excluded from the civil registration system. Marriages solemnised under religious or customary rites that did not follow the prescribed marriage formula in the Act, or whose marriage formula had not been approved by the Minister of Home Affairs, were not registered. This included those religious marriages whose minister of religion was not designated as a marriage officer by the Minister of Home Affairs or any authorised officer in the public service. While the Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No.25 of 1961), made provision for the solemnisation of marriages according to 'Christian, Jewish or Mohammedan rites or rites of any Indian religion', in fact only marriages conducted according to Christian, and Jewish or Hebrew rites had been recognised. For other religions whose marriage ceremony had not yet been approved, marriages conducted under such rites were not recognised.
- 1.5.4 The passing by parliament of the Recognition of Customary Marriages Act, 1998 (Act No. 120 of 1998), will now recognise previously unrecognised customary and traditional marriages in law and will therefore register these marriages. The implementation date for this Act is 15 November 2000.
- 1.5.5 As a step towards improving the registration of marriages and divorces in South Africa, especially in light of the new Act, Stats

SA's Subdirectorate: Vital Statistics held a workshop on 24 February 1999 in which key role-players participated. The main issues raised at the workshop were how to register customary marriages and divorces, issues relating to the recognition of all religious marriages and the revision of the form that is used to register divorces.

- 1.5.6 In May 1999 Stats SA introduced a new divorce form. There are several reasons for revising the old divorce form. First was the need to modify it to reflect new concerns such as the passing of the new Act. Second was the need to obtain more information about children whose parents were divorced. Such information is necessary for monitoring the implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) to which South Africa is a signatory.
- 1.5.7 Some of the revisions in the divorce form include:
- The revision of the choices of responses pertaining to where the marriage was solemnised. The new form now takes into account the religious places and customary rites for the solemnisation of a marriage.
 - The section on the type of marriage contract that the couple entered into has now been revised to reflect in or out of community of property, and including and excluding the accrual system.
 - Date of the couples' separation is also included.
 - The old divorce form merely asked for the number of minor children involved; the new form makes provision for the age and gender of the minor children involved.
 - The High Court and Family Court are now responsible for the dissolving of marriages. The inclusion of the Family Court is important, as the Maintenance Court is going to be absorbed within this structure. This change is significant when considering minor children in a divorce case.
- 1.5.8 At the workshop it was noted that while the Recognition of Customary Marriages Act will now be recognised by law and register customary marriages, religious marriages, especially Muslim religious marriages, are still to be recognised and recorded.
- 1.5.9 Some of the following points were raised at the workshop relating to Islamic marriages and divorces:
- In the case of Islamic marriages it is significant to note that the age 18 years is no precedent. Marriage is possible as soon as puberty is attained (for both males and females).
 - The expression Nikah (marriage) and Talaq (divorce) are serious pronouncement according to Islamic law. Once uttered the concepts represented become binding. A requirement of Islamic marriages is that they have to be done in the presence of witnesses. After Muslim couples have been married according to Islamic specifications, it is a duplication to register the marriage as civil, especially when the marriage was solemnised earlier under religious, Islamic rites.
 - There is a prescribed procedure with regard to the dissolution of Islamic marriages. Here secular courts ought to be acquainted with the systems according to Islamic Jurisprudence - the system of counseling, arbitration, etc.
 - A Muslim husband and wife could have varying surnames. Islam permits the wife to retain her maiden name.
 - Whilst Islam acknowledges polygamy, it must be understood that it is limited polygamy that Islam advocates. A capable Muslim can marry up to four times.
- 1.5.10 In the above regard the South African Law Commission released an Issue Paper 15 (Project 59) on Islamic Marriages and Related Matters in May 2000. The Issue Paper investigates the legal recognition of Islamic marriages and other aspects of Islamic Personal Law within South Africa. The Issue Paper attempts to draw attention to the more compelling issues arising out of the potential recognition of Muslim Personal Law in South Africa. The Issue Paper is meant to stimulate debate on how Muslim Personal Law should co-exist with current legislation and with the Constitution.

- 1.5.11 Some of the proposals that were put forward in the Issue Paper for comment included:
- It is proposed that couples contemplating a marriage should have the right to choose a marital system, which is compatible with their religious beliefs and with the constitution. This implies that the marriage could, by way of contract, be governed by Muslim Personal Law, or by secular law.
 - To the extent that legislation is to give effect to the recognition of Islamic marriages, it is suggested that the new statute provide for both new and existing marriages.
 - In the case of new marriages, it is proposed that the legislation should provide at least for the following matters :
 - the age of consent, which should be 18 years;
 - the designation of marriages officers who are entitled to perform Islamic marriages;
 - the registration of the marriages by the signing of a marriage register;
 - the formalities pertaining to the time, place and manner of solemnisation of Islamic marriages;
 - the appropriate marriage formula for the solemnisation of an Islamic marriage; and
 - a standard contractual provision in the terms of which a Muslim Personal Law system established in the event of parties contemplating a Muslim marriage.
 - Proposals are invited concerning the affording of recognition to polygamous marriages entered into before the commencement of a new statute, particularly in regard to potential complications such as existing proprietary rights, maintenance, succession and social welfare benefits.
 - It is suggested that marriage officers should be required to recognise a Talaq in the presence of the parties, and that, for record and official purposes and for consonance with the Constitution, a Talaq should be confirmed by a court before it takes effect. Moreover, it is suggested that legislation, which recognises aspects of Muslim Personal Law, must also provide for an effective system of dispute resolution.

- In order to deal with constitutional concerns, it is suggested that any proposed legislation stipulating the grounds on which the conclusion of a polygamous marriage would be permissible, has to be narrowly circumscribed in the recognition of the limitations set out by the Qur'an itself.

1.6 Clarity on the choice of explanatory variables included in the report

- 1.6.1 The heterogeneity of the South African society makes it necessary to distinguish between global (national) effects and effects that apply specifically to certain population subgroups. For this reason, the divorce data are disaggregated into different relevant variables such as province, duration of marriage, marital status at time of marriage, occupation of spouse at time of divorce, population group, number of minor children, etc.
- 1.6.2 Of all the above variables, the relevance of population group is persistently questioned. The Department of Home Affairs does not collect information on this variable in the marriage statistics or in its other statistics (as at 1997). The divorce form however, still collects information on this variable for the purposes of informing policy. As reporting on African is relatively poor, it is necessary to keep the population variable in order to monitor the progress made in improving coverage.
- 1.6.3 There is, however, a section of the population that chooses not to be placed in any population group by not filling in the question on population group. Previously, imputation was applied to cases where population groups were omitted. This entailed using the names reported and other available characteristics to decipher the likely population group. This practice has been discontinued since the 1995 marriages and divorces report. The report carries in its summary marriages between people of different population groups and marriages where the population group is not specified, respectively categorised as mixed and unspecified.

2. NOTES AND CONCEPTS

2.1 Married couples

The table below indicates from which population census the number of married couples was based on for the years 1970 to 1998. The results of Census 1996 conflict with those of Census 1991. For this reason Census 1991 has not been used for the years after 1991.

Years	Population Census
1970 to 1979	1970
1980 to 1984	1980
1985 to 1990	1985
1991 to 1999	1996

2.1.1 In Table 1.1, figures for the married couples for 1991 to 1995, and 1997 to 1999 for all the population groups, have been revised. In the calculation it was assumed that the crude marriage rate was the same over a given period. Therefore it was assumed that the 1996 marriage rate would apply for 1991, till the results of the next census becomes available. The following method was used to calculate the 1991 to 1995, and the 1997 to 1999 married couples figures:

$$\mu = \frac{M}{P}$$

Where:

μ = Crude marriage rate

M = Married couples (here based on the Census 1996 figures)

P = Population mid-year estimate

The estimates for the married couples for 1991 to 1995 and 1997 to 1999 were then calculated as:

$$M_{year} = \mu \times P_{year}$$

Where:

M = Estimate for married couples (year)

μ = Crude marriage rate

P = Population mid-year estimate (year)

2.1.2 Modified Crude Divorce Rate (MDR)

The modified divorce rate (MDR) is calculated as:

$$d_{mar} = \frac{D}{P_f}$$

Where:

d_{mar} = Divorce rate for married couples in a given year

D = Number of divorces in a given year

P_f = Number of married persons who are female

The modified crude divorce rate is used to denote the divorce rate based on the number of married couples. In intercensal years it is difficult to obtain a good estimate of the denominator. The denominator is usually obtained by either averaging the number of males and females, or by using one or the other. For the calculating of the modified crude divorce rate in this report the number of married persons who are female was used as the denominator.

2.2 Magisterial districts

2.2.1 In this report, for Table 2.3 and 3.2, data are classified by magisterial district and according to the nine provinces of SA.

2.2.2 The coding of magisterial districts for Table 3.2 is done according to the plaintiff's address.

- 2.2.3 During the data coding process magisterial districts are coded based on the Standard Code List of Areas (28 November 1995), Twelfth Edition. This is a Stats SA publication.
- 2.2.4 Dating back to 1994, the coding of magisterial districts was done using the Standard Code List of Areas of 4 January, (Eleventh Edition). This is a Stats SA publication.
- 2.2.5 The data for 1994, in some cases, are not comparable to the data from previous years. This is because of the changes in the boundaries of the magisterial districts in 1994.
- 2.2.6 In Tables 2.1, 2.2 and 2.3, under the subheading 'Area' the category 'Unspecified' indicates that incomplete information on province and/or magisterial district was submitted to the Department of Home Affairs.
- 2.2.7 In Table 3.2 the category 'Rest of ... Province', refers to districts that recorded less than four divorces per population group.

2.3 Way of solemnisation of marriage

- 2.3.1 In this report, the descriptions of the way of solemnisation need to be clarified. 'Civil' marriages refer to all marriages solemnised in courts either by a magistrate or designated marriage officer. However, as of the 1 June 1996 no magistrate or designated persons from the Department of Justice solemnised marriages. The solemnisation of marriages is now conducted by the Department of Home Affairs.
- 2.3.2 The category 'Religious', in this report, refers to marriages that were solemnised under Christian or Jewish and Hebrew rites. It excludes customary, traditional marriages, and certain religious rites, especially that of Islamic marriages. Once these unrecognised marriages are recognised by law and recorded then the use of the category 'religious' would be representative of the way marriages are solemnised in South Africa.

- 2.3.3 In cases where the religious denomination is not known or when the church description is vague, these are coded as 'unspecified'. In some of these cases only the name of the town or place where the marriages was registered is indicated.
- 2.3.4 In Tables 2.3 the category 'Other' is used to code other Christian denominations, where the numbers are not significantly large.

2.4 Age

For marriages and divorces, the ages of the parties and duration of marriage are shown as completed years

2.5 Occupation

- 2.5.1 In this report, the classification of occupations is based on the Standard Classification of Occupations, Report No. 09-90-01, First Edition, 1986. This is a Stats SA publication
- 2.5.2 The descriptions of the occupation codes for Table 3.12 can be found in detail in Table 3.11.

2.6 Minor Children

In Tables 1.1 and 3.9, minor children refers to unmarried children under the age of 18 years.

3 DEFINITIONS

Crude rate: A 'crude rate' has a specific and general meaning. In its specific meaning, it refers to the general rate for the total population of an area. More generally, however, it may be used to refer to the general rate for any population group in an area such as the male population, the population of a province or the urban population of a country.

Crude marriage rate as calculated in Figure 1, is expressed as the number of marriages per 100 000 of the population.

Specific divorce rate, as calculated in Table 1.1, denotes the divorce rate based on the number of divorces per 1 000 married couples.

Modified divorce rate, denote the divorce rate based on the number of married couples.

Cumulative rates by year of marriage, is the proportion of marriages dissolved by divorce since the year of the marriage to date.
