PREFACE

1. This report contains statistics on marriages contracted and divorces granted in South Africa during 2002 as registered by the civil registration system.
2. The 2002 report portrays statistics on marriages recorded and recognised by the civil registration system, and therefore those marriages and divorces not recognised by civil registration system have not been included. While the Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961), made provision for the solemnisation of marriages according to 'Christian, Jewish or Mohammedan rites or rites of any Indian religion', in fact only marriages concluded according to Christian and Jewish or Hebrew rites had been recognised. In the case of other religions whose marriage ceremony had not yet been approved at the time, marriages concluded through the rites of these religions, were not recognised. The summary and explanatory notes of this report discuss in detail the steps that are being taken to align the older (based on the Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961), legislation with the new Constitution of South Africa.
3. In the case of marriages, the statistical information is obtained from the Department of Home Affairs, whilst data on divorces are obtained from the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court.
4. As from 1991 the Department of Home Affairs does not collect information on population group of couples getting married. For divorces, however, information on population group is available.
5. As from 1994 information on divorces for all population groups is collected. Previously only information on divorces for coloureds, Indians/Asians and whites was collected.
6. Divorces where the population group of the husband and wife differs, or are unspecified, form part of the contents of the report and are no longer shown as a table in the summary.
7. Should your copy of this publication have any unacceptable printing or binding errors, the publication will be exchanged free of charge on receipt of the unsatisfactory copy. Please return it to the STATS SA's head office, at Private Bag X44, Pretoria, 0001 or 170 Andries Street, Pretoria.

SUMMARY

Introduction

The marriage and divorce statistics covered in this report include marriages and divorces that were recorded through civil registration system in 2002. This excludes the marriages solemnised under customary and certain religious rites during this time. Past legislation on the registration of marriages and divorces in South Africa resulted in customary and certain religious marriages and divorces being excluded from the civil registration system. Marriages solemnised under religious or customary rites that did not follow the prescribed marriage ceremony in the previous Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961) or where the marriage formula had not been approved by the Minister of Home Affairs, were not recognised or recorded by the civil registration system. Also marriages solemnised by a minister of religion who was not designated as a marriage officer by the Minister of Home Affairs or by any authorised officer in the public service, were not recognised or recorded.

With the recent passing of the Recognition of Customary Marriages Act, 1998 (Act No. 120 of 1998), by parliament the civil registration system will now recognise and record those marriages solemnised under customary rites. The implementation date of this Act was 15 November 2000.

In order to align the older legislation with the new constitution, the South African Law Commission has undertaken an investigation with a view to recognising Islamic marriages. In this regard a more detailed discussion is provided in the explanatory notes of this report.

Officially recorded marriages

In 2002 the total number of officially recorded marriages for South Africa was 177 202. In Table A the number of officially recorded marriages dating back to 1981, is shown. The crude marriage rate for 2002 for registered marriages was 390 per 100 000 of the population. In Figure 1 the crude marriage rates by province shows that Western Cape had the highest crude marriage rate (621 per 100 000 of the population), Gauteng had the second highest rate (556 per 100 000 of the population), followed by Free State (464 per 100 000 of the population). Limpopo had the lowest rate (257 per 100 000 of the population). The low rate in Limpopo could be explained by the fact that unregistered customary and traditional marriages mostly occur in this largely rural province.

In general the more 'rural' a province, it would be expected that there will be fewer recorded marriages per 100 000 of the population. This is probably because of the large number of unregistered customary marriages taking place in the province.

Previous marital status at time of marriage

Information on previous marital status at time of marriage shows that more bachelors and widowers married either spinsters or widows while divorcees showed preference for spinsters or divorcees. As in the total population where most (55%) marriages were solemnised by civil ceremony. This is seen in Figure 2.

Officially recorded marriages by way of solemnisation

Of the total officially recorded marriages in 2002, 97 286 (55%) were solemnised under civil rites and 51 188 (29%) through religious ceremonies. For 28 728 (16%) marriages the way of solemnisation was unspecified. When compared to the 2001 data, solemnisation by civil rites increased in number by 27 765 and marriages solemnised under religious ceremonies increased in number by 6 002. The number of marriages classified as unspecified decreased by 8 854.

A breakdown of marriages according to way of solemnisation and province shows that in some provinces more marriages were solemnised under civil rites than under religious ceremony. The distribution of marriages in the different provinces by way of solemnisation (Figure 2) shows that in Northern Cape, Free State, Eastern Cape, North West, Gauteng, Limpopo and Mpumalanga more marriages were solemnised by civil rites than by religious ceremony. In Western Cape and KwaZulu-Natal more marriages were solemnised under religious ceremony than by civil rites. In Gauteng, for a large number of marriages (6 421) the way of solemnisation was unspecified.

The distribution of officially recorded marriages by leading magisterial districts, as shown in Table B, indicates that some municipalities have a far higher number of marriages registered than others. The high number of registered marriages in these municipalities can probably be attributed to the fact that most of these are more populated and more urbanised than other municipalities in their respective provinces. Leading municipalities shown in Table B are presented according to declining frequency in the number of marriages. In Gauteng, out of the 11 municipalities, 6 leading municipalities in the province contributed 93% to the total marriages. In Western Cape, out of the 26 municipalities, 2 contributed 2%; in KwaZulu-Natal, out of the 35 municipalities, 2 contributed 58%; in Limpopo, out of the 22 municipalities, 2 contributed 49%; in Eastern Cape, out of the 40 municipalities, 3 contributed 60%; in Free State, out of 20 municipalities, 3 contributed 68%; in North West, out of 18 municipalities, 3 contributed 49%; in Northern Cape, out of the 17 municipalities, 1 contributed 57%; and in Mpumalanga, out of the 18 municipalities, 1 contributed 34%.

Age patterns of officially recorded marriages

The age at first marriage is important, as it influences the timing of childbearing, the number of years exposed to childbearing (in communities where childbearing starts with the formation of marital union) and ultimately fertility. In 2002 the median age for first registered marriage was 29 years for females and 33 years for males (this includes officially recorded marriages for mixed and unspecified population groups). In Figure 3 the age distribution for males and females at the time of first marriage is uni-modal and skewed towards the younger ages, peaking at age group 25-29 for females and 35-39 for males. For ages below the peak age group more females than males got married, while for ages above the peak age group more males than females got married.

Figure 4 shows the relative ages of bachelors and their brides at the time of marriage. A little under 79% of the bachelors who married spinsters were older than their brides. About 13% were younger than their brides and a little under 7% were the same age as their brides. This suggests that in most of the first registered marriages, females tended to be younger than the males they married. On the other hand, over 78% of bachelors, who married either widows or divorcees, were older than their brides. About 17% of bachelors were older than their brides who were widows, and 7% older than their brides who were divorcees. Figure 5 shows that widowers were older than the spinsters, widows or divorcees that they married. Figure 6 shows that the proportion of divorcees younger than their brides at the time of marriage was largest for those who married spinsters, at 80%.

Officially recorded divorces

Divorce is the conclusive act of dissolution of a marriage, and in 2002 a total of 31 370 divorces were recorded in South Africa. The modified divorce rate for South Africa was 526 per 100 000 married couples. Figure 7 shows the provinces by modified divorce rates. The provinces with the highest modified divorce rates were Gauteng (2 537 per 100 000 married couples), followed by Eastern Cape (1 528 per 100 000 married couples) and KwaZulu-Natal (830 per 100 000 married couples). Limpopo had the lowest crude divorce rate at 19 divorces per 100 000 married couples.

In 2002, 7 050 divorces were recorded for Africans, 3 581 for coloureds, 1 525 for Indians/Asians and 14 171 for whites. The modified divorce rate for whites was 1 361 per 100 000 married couples, followed by Indians/Asians (645 per 100 000 married couples) and coloureds (673 per 100 000 married couples). The modified divorce rate for Africans was 174 per 100 000 married couples. The low modified divorce rate for Africans could be attributed to registration excluding reporting of traditional and customary marriage dissolution, since in all instances, the traditional and customary marriages are not registered

Officially recorded divorces by way of solemnisation of marriages

Figure 8 shows that, for all population groups, recorded divorces comprised mainly of marriages that were solemnised through civil rather than religious rite.

Age patterns of registered divorces among the different population groups

Age distribution of registered divorced males by population group are shown in Figure 9. It can be observed that for whites divorce begins early, with males aged under 20 years divorcing. The number of divorces among whites rises sharply after age 24 and only begins to decline after age 39. The pattern for all the other population groups show relatively later rises in divorces, with Africans showing the slowest rise at approximately before the age of 30.

A comparison of the patterns between whites and Africans show that divorces begin early among whites and remain relatively high until after age 39. Compared to white males, divorces for African males begin later and start to decline later than those for whites. Divorces among Indian/Asian males remain relatively constant through the different age groups. Divorces among coloured males begin early with the husbands' age at 20 years and thereafter steadily rise peaking at 35-39 years. The age patterns of divorces for all the population groups among males shows that maximum number of divorces are observed among whites (14 171) and the minimum among Indians/Asians (1 525). Figure 10 shows the age distribution of registered divorce for females by population group. From the Figure it can be observed that for whites, divorce begins early, with wives aged under 20 years. It rises sharply, reaches a peak at 30-35 years and declines thereafter. The pattern for all the other population groups shows a relatively steady rise in divorces as age increases. For African females the divorces peaked between 35 and 39 years and thereafter decrease with increasing age.

Divorces by duration of marriage prior to the divorce

Figure 11 shows the number of divorces according to the duration of marriage prior (less than 25 years) to the divorce by population group. The Figure shows that although there is a general decline with increasing duration of marriage among all population groups. However, there is a slight increase before this decline. For the total population, about 22% of the divorces occurred in marriages of less than 5 years duration, and 28% among those of between 5 and 9 years. For Africans, number of divorces peaks for marriages of 5-9 years duration and declines with increasing duration of marriage. Among whites and coloureds majority of divorces occurred among individuals married for 0-4 years. For Indians/Asians, the number of divorces was almost independent of duration of marriage and constant as duration increased.

Figure 12 shows the number of divorcees who had married more than once at the time of divorce by population group and sex. Among whites and coloureds, divorcees who had previously married more than once were mainly females. For Indians/Asians, there were as many previously married females as males divorcing.

Minor children involved in divorce

Divorce may have a profound effect, not only on the living arrangements of minor children, but also on their socio-economic and psycho-social well being. A total of 34 212 minor children were involved by registered divorces in 2002, indicating a decrease in the number compared to the 2001 total of 37 814 . Figure 13 shows the breakdown of the number of minor children affected by divorce by population group. For Africans a total of 8 578 minor children were affected by divorce, for whites it was 14 031, for coloureds 4 868, for Indians/Asians 1 794. The number of minor children involved in divorce for mixed and unspecified population groups, respectively were 342 and 4 599.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

1. GENERAL BACKGROUND

1.1 Comparability of data

- 1.1.1 Data on marriages and divorces dating back to 1985 is not comparable to data from the previous years. Closing dates for these series were advanced to as near as possible to the end of the relevant year.
- 1.1.2 Divorces that are registered late are recorded for the year of registration of the divorce and not for the year in which the divorce was granted.
- 1.1.3 For the period 1970 to 1993, data for the former Republics of Transkei, Bophuthatswana, Venda and Ciskei were excluded from the report (Table 1.1 of the report). As from 1994 data for these areas form part of the data reported.
- 1.1.4 In comparison to previous years, figures for divorces for 1991 are relatively low. This decrease in the number of divorces has been queried with the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court, but no explanations could be found.
- 1.1.5 For the years 1990 to 1991 the number of divorces indicated a relative decrease. In comparing the 1992 number of finalised divorces received from the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court, with the court rolls of finalised divorces, it appears that Stats SA did not receive all the information from the courts concerned. To provide a more accurate divorce figure, the 1992 divorce information was adjusted.

1.1.6 The number of divorces for 1993, when compared to 1992, is relatively low. Following queries with the registrars of the various divisions of the Supreme Court, it was confirmed that all relevant information on divorces had been supplied to Stats SA.

1.1.7 Incompleteness in data can occur if all information on marriages and divorces is not supplied. Under-reporting and under-registration of marriages and divorces is inevitable, and the effects of this on marriages and divorces statistics has not yet been determined or estimated.

1.2 Collection and compilation of data on marriages

1.2.1 Marriage officers obtain data on marriages from marriage certificates that are submitted to the Department of Home Affairs. Very often magistrates, justices of peace, commissioners and ministers of religion serve as marriage officers, although other public service employees may also be designated to serve in such capacities. Marriages solemnised in courts are classed under civil marriages and are recorded by the Department of Home Affairs within three days of solemnisation of any marriage. However, as from 1 June 1996 no magistrate or designated persons from the Department of Justice solemnised marriages. The solemnisation of marriages is now conducted by the Department of Home Affairs.

1.2.2 Data capture of the marriage details is subsequently carried out at the Department of Home Affairs. Details of the bride and bridegroom are recorded together with the religious denomination of the officiating minister. At the coding of data stage, codes are assigned only to the religious denominations with significant numbers of divorces.

1.3 Collection and compilation of data on divorces

- 1.3.1 Stats SA, through registrars of the twelve Supreme Courts, administers the divorce form. Data capture and editing are carried out at Stats SA. The new divorce form (implemented in May 1999) now provides for the inclusion of customary and religious marriages in the section on the way in which present marriage was solemnised.
- 1.3.2 Undocumented cases of abandonment do not appear in the statistics nor does divorces that have been granted by religious or traditional authorities outside the civil courts.

1.4 Shortcomings in marriage and divorce statistics

- 1.4.1 An issue that needs clarification is the treatment of marriage or divorce as an event as opposed to a process. When the marriages become processes extending over a period of time, they cannot be described as events that took place at certain dates.
- 1.4.2 For divorces, this problem is even worse. When couples first report the need for divorce, it may be granted in a few weeks if it is not contested. However, granting of the divorce may take a few years if contested. The statistics presented here report the year in which the divorce is granted, thereby reducing the whole process to an event.
- 1.4.3 With regard to divorces, this report does not take into account annulments. An annulment is another way in which the marriage contract is dissolved. It makes the marriage contract void from inception and confers on the parties the status of never having been married or to the status they held before the annulled marriage. A divorce confers the status of divorce on the parties. An annulment is distinctive from a divorce in that the former is granted based on some condition existing at the time of the contract, whereas the latter is granted based on some condition arising during the contract.

1.5 Towards the improvement of marriages and divorce statistics

- 1.5.1 From 1970 to 1993, Stats SA did not publish in their reports any information on marriages and divorces for Africans, due to the small number recorded by the civil registration system. This information was first published in the 1994 report.
- 1.5.2 Marriage statistics among Africans were only included in the reports from 1991 as part of the totals (there was no breakdown by population groups). The 1995 report was the first one to shed some light on the pace of change in divorces among Africans.
- 1.5.3 Past legislation on the registration of marriages and divorces in South Africa resulted in a large proportion of especially customary and certain religious marriages and divorces being excluded from the civil registration system. Marriages solemnised under religious or customary rites that did not follow the prescribed marriage formula in the Act, or whose marriage formula had not been approved by the Minister of Home Affairs, were not registered. This included those religious marriages whose minister of religion was not designated as a marriage officer by the Minister of Home Affairs or any authorised officer in the public service. While the Marriages Act, 1961 (Act No. 25 of 1961) made provision for the solemnisation of marriages according to 'Christian, Jewish or Mohammedan rites or rites of any Indian religion', in fact only marriages conducted according to Christian, and Jewish or Hebrew rites had been recognised. For other religions whose marriage formula had not yet been approved, marriages conducted under such rites were not recognised.
- 1.5.4 The passing of the Recognition of Customary Marriages Act, 1998 (Act No.120 of 1998) by parliament, will now recognise previously unrecognised customary and traditional marriages in law and will therefore register these marriages. The implementation date of this Act was 15 November 2000.

- 1.5.5 As a step towards improving the registration of marriages and divorces in South Africa, especially in light of the new Act, on 24 February 1999 Stats SA's Subdirector: Vital Statistics held a workshop in which key role-players participated. The main issues raised at the workshop were how to register customary marriages and divorces, issues relating to the recognition of all religious marriages and the revision of the form that is used to register divorces.
- 1.5.6 In May 1999 Stats SA implemented a new divorce form. There are several reasons for revising the old divorce form. First was the need to modify it to reflect new concerns such as the passing of the new Act. Second was the need to obtain more information about children whose parents were divorced. Such information is necessary for monitoring the implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) to which South Africa is a signatory.
- 1.5.7 Some of the revisions in the divorce form include:
- The revision of the choices of responses pertaining to where the marriage was solemnised. The new form now takes into account the religious places and customary rites for the solemnisation of a marriage.
 - The section on the type of marriage contract that the couple entered into has now been revised to reflect in or out of community of property, and including and excluding the accrual system.
 - Date of the couples' separation is also included.
 - The old divorce form merely asked for the number of minor children involved; the new form makes provision for the age and gender of the minor children involved.
 - The High Court and Family Court are now responsible for the dissolving of marriages. The inclusion of the Family Court is important, as the Maintenance Court is going to be absorbed within this structure. This change is significant when considering minor children in divorce case.
- 1.5.8 At the workshop it was noted that while the Recognition of Customary Marriages Act will now be recognised by law and register customary marriages, religious marriages, especially Muslim religious marriages, are still to be recognised and recorded.
- 1.5.9 Some of the following points were raised at the workshop relating to Islamic marriages and divorces:
- In the case of Islamic marriages it is significant to note that the 18 years is no precedent. Marriage is possible as soon as puberty is attained (for both males and females).
 - The concepts Nikah (marriage) and Talaq (divorce) are serious pronouncements according to Islamic law. A requirement of Islamic marriages is that they have to be concluded in the presence of witnesses. After Muslim couples have been married according to Islamic rites, registration of the marriage in terms of civil rites is regarded as a duplication of the marriage solemnisation.
 - There is a prescribed procedure with regard to the dissolution of Islamic marriages. Here secular courts ought to be acquainted with the systems according to Islamic Jurisprudence – the system of counseling, arbitration, etc.
 - A Muslim husband and wife could have varying surnames. Islam permits the wife to retain her maiden name.
 - Whilst Islam acknowledges polygamy, it must be understood that it is limited polygamy that Islam advocates. A capable Muslim may take up to four wives.
- 1.5.10 In the above regard the South African Law Commission released an Issue Paper 15 (Project 59) on Islamic Marriages and Related Matters in May 2000. The Issue Paper investigates the legal recognition of Islamic marriages and other aspects of Islamic Personal Law within South Africa. The Issue Paper attempts to draw attention to the more compelling issues arising out of the potential recognition of Muslim Personal Law in South Africa. The Issue Paper is meant to stimulate debate on how Muslim Personal Law should co-exist with current legislation and with the Constitution.

1.5.11 Some of the proposals that were put forward in the Issue Paper for comment included:

- It is proposed that couples contemplating a marriage should have the right to choose a marital system, which is compatible with their religious beliefs and with the constitution. This implies that the marriage could, by way of contract, be governed by Muslim Personal Law, or by secular law.
- To the extent that legislation is to give effect to the recognition of Islamic marriages, it is suggested that the new statute provide for both new and existing marriages.
- In the case of new marriages, it is proposed that the legislation should provide at least for the following matters:
 - the age of consent, which should be 18 years;
 - the designation of marriages officers who are entitled to perform Islamic marriages;
 - the registration of the marriages by the signing of a marriage register;
 - the formalities pertaining to the time, place and manner of solemnisation of Islamic marriages;
 - the appropriate marriage formula for the solemnisation of an Islamic marriage; and
 - a standard contractual provision in the terms of which a Muslim Personal Law system established in the event of parties contemplating a Muslim marriage.
- Proposals are invited concerning the affording of recognition to polygamous marriages entered into before the commencement of a new statute, particularly in regard to potential complications such as existing proprietary rights, maintenance, succession and social welfare benefits.
- It is suggested that marriage officers should be required to recognise a Talaq in the presence of the parties, and that, for record and official purposes and for consonance with the Constitution, a Talaq should be confirmed by a court before it takes effect. Moreover, it is suggested that legislation, which recognises aspects of Muslim Personal Law, must also provide for an effective system of dispute resolution.

- In order to deal with constitutional concerns, it is suggested that any proposed legislation stipulating the grounds on which the conclusion of a polygamous marriage would be permissible, has to be narrowly circumscribed in the recognition of the limitations set out by the Qur'an itself.

1.6 Clarity on the choice of explanatory variables included in the report

- 1.6.1 The heterogeneity of the South African society makes it necessary to distinguish between global (national) effects and effects that apply specifically to certain population subgroups. For this reason, the divorce data are disaggregated into different relevant variables such as province, duration of marriage, marital status at time of marriage, occupation of spouse at time of divorce, population group, number of minor children, etc.
- 1.6.2 Of all the above variables, the relevance of population group is persistently questioned. The Department of Home Affairs does not collect information on this variable in the marriage statistics or in its other statistics (as at 1997). The divorce form, however, still collects information on this variable for the purposes of informing policy. As reporting on Africans is relatively poor, it is necessary to keep the population variable in order to monitor the progress made in improving coverage.
- 1.6.3 There is, however, a section of the population that chooses not to be placed in any population group by not filling in the question on population group. Previously, imputation was applied to cases where population groups were omitted. This entailed using the names reported and other available characteristics to decipher the likely population group. This practice has been discontinued since the 1995 marriages and divorces report. The report carries in its summary marriages between people of different population groups and marriages where the population group is not specified, respectively categorised as mixed and unspecified.

2. NOTES AND CONCEPTS

2.1 Married couples

The table below indicates from which population census the number of married couples was based on for the years 1970 to 1998. The results of Census 1996 conflict with those of Census 1991. For this reason Census 1991 has not been used for the years after 1991.

Years	Population Census
1970 to 1979	1970
1980 to 1984	1980
1985 to 1990	1985
1991 to 2002	1996

2.1.1 In Table 1.1, figures for the married couples for 1991 to 1995, and 1997 to 2002, for all the population groups, have been revised. In the calculation it was assumed that the crude marriage rate was the same over a given period. Therefore it was assumed that the 1996 marriage rate would apply for 1991, till the results of the next census becomes available. The following method was used to calculate the 1991 to 1995, and the 1997 to 2002 married couples figures:

$$\mu = \frac{M}{P}$$

Where:

μ = Crude marriage rate

M = Married couples (here based on Census 1996 figures)

P = Population mid-year estimate

The estimates for the married couples for 1991 to 1995 and 1997 to 1998 were then calculated as:

$$M_{year} = \mu \times P_{year}$$

Where:

M = Estimate for married couples (year)

μ = Crude marriage rate

P = Population mid-year estimate (year)

2.1.2 Modified Crude Divorce Rate (MDR)

The modified divorce rate (MDR) is calculated as:

$$d_{mar} = \frac{D}{P_f}$$

Where:

d_{mar} = Divorce rate for married couples in a given year

D = Number of divorces in a given year

P_f = Number of married persons who are female

The modified crude divorce rate is used to denote the divorce rate based on the number of married couples. In intercensal years it is difficult to obtain a good estimate of the denominator. The denominator is usually obtained by either averaging the number of males and females, or by using one or the other. For the calculating of the modified crude divorce rate in this report the number of married persons who are female was used as the denominator.

2.2. Municipalities

2.2.1 In this report, for Tables 2.3 and 3.2, data are classified by municipality and according to the nine provinces of SA.

2.2.2 The coding of municipalities for Table 3.2 is done according to the plaintiff's address.

2.2.3 During the data coding process municipalities are coded in terms of the requirements of the Municipal Demarcation Board.

2.2.4 Dating back to 1994, the coding of magisterial districts was done using the Standard Code list of Areas of 28 November 1995 (Twelfth Edition), which was published by Stats SA.

2.2.5 The data for 1994, in some cases, are not comparable to the data of previous years. This is because of the changes in the boundaries of the magisterial districts in 1994.

2.2.6 In Tables 2.1, 2.2 and 2.3, under the subheading 'Area', the category 'Unspecified' indicates that incomplete information on province and/or municipality was submitted to the Department of Home Affairs.

2.2.7 In Table 3.2, the category 'Rest of ... Province', refers to municipalities that recorded less than four divorces per population group.

2.3. Way of solemnisation of marriage

2.3.1 In this report, the descriptions of the way of solemnisation need to be clarified. 'Civil' marriages refer to all marriages solemnised in courts either by a magistrate or designated marriage officer. However, as from 1 June 1996 no magistrate or designated persons from the Department of Justice solemnised marriages. The solemnisation of marriages is now conducted by the Department of Home Affairs.

2.3.2 The category 'Religious', in this report, refers to marriages that were solemnised under Christian or Jewish and Hebrew rites. It excludes customary, traditional marriages, and certain religious rites, especially that of Islamic marriages. Once these unrecognised marriages are recognised by law and recorded then the use of the category 'religious' would be representative of the way marriages are solemnised in South Africa.

2.3.3 In cases where the religious denomination is not known or when the church description is vague, these are coded as 'unspecified'. In some of these cases only the name of the town or place where the marriages was registered is indicated.

2.3.4 In Table 2.3 the category 'Other' is used to code other Christian denominations, where the numbers are not significantly large.

2.4. Age

For marriages and divorces, the ages of the parties and duration of marriage are shown as completed years

2.5 Occupation

2.5.1 In this report the classification of occupations is based on the Standard Classification of Occupations, Report No. 09-90-01, First Edition, 1986, which was published by Stats SA.

2.5.2 The descriptions of the occupation codes for Table 3.12 can be found in detail in Table 3.11.

2.6 Minor children

In Tables 1.1 and 3.9 'Minor children' refers to unmarried children under the age of 18 years.

3. DEFINITIONS

Crude rate: A 'crude rate' has a specific and general meaning. In its specific meaning, it refers to the general rate for the total population of an area. More generally, however, it may be used to refer to the general rate for any population group in an area such as the male population, the population of a province or the urban population of a country.

Crude marriage rate as calculated in Figure 1, is expressed as the number of marriages per 100 000 of the population.

Specific divorce rate, as calculated in Table 1.1, denotes the divorce rate based on the number of divorces per 1 000 married couples.

Modified divorce rate denotes the divorce rate based on the number of married couples.

Cumulative rates by year of marriage is the proportion of marriages dissolved by divorce since the year of the marriage to date.
