CapEx: Eskom and Transnet are the biggest spenders

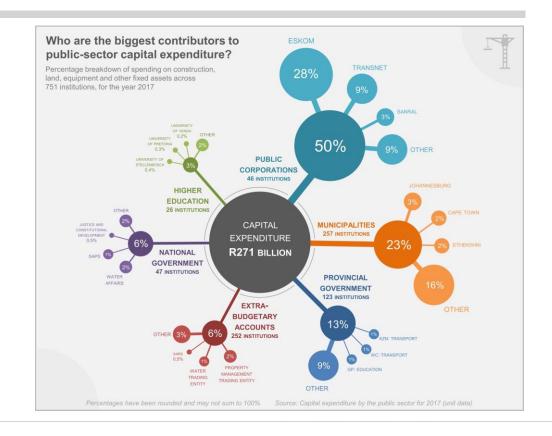

Capital expenditure (CapEx) is money that an institution spends to buy, maintain or upgrade fixed assets, such as buildings, vehicles, land and equipment.

Eskom and Transnet were the two biggest publicsector spenders on fixed assets, with Eskom responsible for 28% of total capital expenditure while Transnet was in second spot at 9%.

Eskom increased its capital expenditure to R75,7 billion in 2017 from R73,0 billion in 2016, mainly due to its work on the Kusile power station.

South Africa's 257 municipalities were responsible for 23% of total public-sector capital expenditure, with Johannesburg, Cape Town and eThekwini the largest contributors.
